1. [REDACTED] Iranian Frontier Guards at the Iranian post of Anbaran in the vicinity of Namin (N38°26' E48°30') observed seven Soviet soldiers who were inspecting a trench on a hill in front of the Soviet post of Fath. When the Soviets realized that they were under observation, they returned to their post.
2. The following day the assistant commissar of the Frontier Guards at Namin protested to the Soviet Frontier Guards concerning this incident; however, the Soviets asserted that the trench and that portion of the hill from which water drains toward Soviet territory lay within the Soviet boundary.
3. The assistant commissar of the Iranian Frontier Guards rejected this claim and the Guards were ordered to protect the hill in question.
